

I understand that a new broadcast service known as Low Power FM will be expanded in such a way as to take priority over current FM translator service.

The radio station that my family listens to, K-Love, is often heard on FM translators. If the translators are forced off the air the K-Love signal would not longer be available to hundreds of thousands of people.

I urge you to reconsider the expansion of the LPFM service that would force K-Love off the air. K-Love provides my family with programming that is suitable for my teenager and younger children. We are all able to listen to it without having to apologize or explain for inappropriate comments.

This family friendly programming is a benefit to our communities not only in the music that it plays but also the news presented in an unbiased manner and the additional programs that promote positive behavior.
